“[Salutin] makes you think. He stimulates you and he excites you and he angers you.”

—Richard Hatfield, CBC-TV

From the notorious Toronto Star columnist...

WHAT WAS I THINKING?

The Autobiography of an Idea and Other Essays

By Rick Salutin

Rick Salutin looms large in the world of Canadian newspapers. At turns incisive, inflammatory, sharply critical, and blisteringly funny, Salutin is one of Canada’s sharpest cultural and political pundits, and now some of his sharpest observations and arguments have been gathered in one place. In What Was I Thinking?, Salutin turns his critical gaze on everything from Starbucks to psychotherapy to contemporary Jewish life. Pop culture, politics, religion—no subject is sacred, and no one is safe from Salutin’s frank and fascinating analyses.

“Trust the thinking, not the thought,” is Salutin’s motto, and in What Was I Thinking?, the reader has the opportunity to listen in on a fascinating mind at work. After a lifetime immersed in religion, philosophy, and activism, Salutin has something to say about just about everything, and he doesn’t pull punches. Salutin gives the discourse around Canadian culture a much-needed jolt of energy, and he reminds us that the country we live in is just as historically rich, ethically complex, and politically depraved as our neighbour to the south.

RICK SALUTIN is a playwright, novelist, and journalist who has received awards in all these areas. He wrote a weekly column for the Globe and Mail for 20 years and now provides weekly columns and videos for the Toronto Star.
